‘Changing Lives’ – Thursday 6th March 2008 at The Elvetham

Day-to-day living. We all do it without thinking. Making coherent plans for the expected and the unexpected key stages of your lifetime takes a great deal of thought, especially for individuals with high incomes, substantial assets, business interests and complex taxation affairs. That is why Phillips Solicitors have teamed up with Baker Tilly and Clydesdale Bank to present an interactive event that will give invaluable legal, accounting and financial advice.

Following the success of our seminar in September last year, we are delighted to present the same enjoyable panel format at the next event on Thursday 6th March, at the stunning venue The Elvetham. Delegates will benefit from hearing how the panel can help them navigate through the maze of complications, ever-changing legislation and money markets. Howard Gardener, senior partner at Phillips, will chair the event, posing questions to the panel, with plenty of input from the audience, giving a fresh approach on these areas of interest:

- Wealth planning, tax-free savings, life cover protection, education, fees planning, key stages of cash flow and debt management
- Tax efficient growth and ownership of assets, use of trusts and borrowing
- Protection against relationship breakdown and asset splitting, management of affairs if it all goes wrong

Chris Lee, Stax Group, commented on the last event: “Refreshing to have a question and answer session format with excellent panel speakers.”
